AMERICAN SYMPATHY WITH

JAPAN.

There is a small minority of American citizens whose sympathies are with Russia in the war now being waged between that country and Japan. This leaning especially finds expression in the press, although it is undoubtedly true that nine-tenths of the American people are with Japan. We are told by the pro-Russian element that the United States owes a debt of gratitude to Russia because of the friendly attitude of that government in our great civil war. In that desperate struggle for national unity, Russia was almost alone among the nations of Europe in wishing for the ultimate success of the federal cause. It may be that selfish interests more or less influenced the Russian people in this direction—the fact that other powers which stood in the way of Russian aggressions were leaning to the southern side of the controversy. Be this as it may, it is beyond denial that Russia was prepared in case of international complications to rally to the support of the United States at that time. The American people were appreciative of this moral support at the time, and have not forgotten it up to the present time. But we fail to see in this any reason why the sympathy of America should go out toward Russia in the imbroglio which is now being fought out in the far east. It does not follow that we must support Russia in every move that restive power may make in its insatiable greed for territory. Let those who believe that Russia has right on her side in the present war justify her if they can. But certainly it is unreasonable for this class to preach to those who deem her course in the far east nothing less than a bold attempt at the robbery of other nations, that they ought to applaud the larceny because of Russia's stand toward America forty years ago. The truth is Russia is, and has been for the last hundred years or more, the most grasping, insatiable power in the world. Her greed for expansion of territory is in the nature of a mania. It does not arise from the necessity imposed by over-population, because her territory both in Europe and Asia is the most sparsely settled portion of the civilized world, and will remain so probably for the next hundred years. But the greed for land afflicts the governing class. The more she adds to her national domain, the greater her thirsts for further acquisition. By diplomatic cunning, by all the artifices of deception and chicanery, she has pursued the even tenor of her way in making additions to her real estate at the expense of other and weaker nations. And notwithstanding all her professions of fair treatment to other people in the way of open ports and free commerce, it is a fact that wherever the Russian standard is unfurled there follows a studious and carefully carried out plan to exclude foreigners from trade competition. It is Russian trade for Russian people, not by the fostering care of a protective tariff, as in the United States, but rather by a system of oppression of those who have been induced by her to build up industrial interests within her borders. She first invites foreign capital to exploit her undeveloped territories, and when these industries become fairly established, the foreign artisans are slowly displaced by the Russians, and finally the owners are also displaced in the same way. That is the way her new territories are Russianized. Russia has really weakened herself by expansion. She has expanded until the immensity of her land area—all contiguous territory though it be—is a source of danger rather than security. Japan, the only progressive Asiatic nation, is also the only power that has dared to call her hand for the last fifty years. She does this because she is convinced, from the settled policy which Russia has followed in the orient so long, that it is imperative to call a halt in her career of incorporating the whole of Asia in her dominions.

In one respect the proceedings of the board of supervisors, which we present in another column, will be perused with more than ordinary interest by our readers. The Ledger for years has denounced the practice which has been followed for years in Amador county, of the supervisors putting in bills in their own names for the road work done in their respective districts, having the bills lumped on the minutes, and drawing the money therefor, the same as their salary or mileage claims, in their own names. We have contended that the practice is contrary to law, and keeps the taxpayers in the dark as to how the road funds are expended. Its tendency is pernicious in other ways. The matter was brought up before the last grand jury, and that body recommended that the practice be discontinued. By the proceedings this month, it will be noticed that the supervisors are abandoning this illegal method of putting in road bills. Supervisors Burke and Grillo put in complete itemized bills, sworn to by the parties doing the work, thereby complying with the law on this subject. They are the new supervisors, and it may be assumed that they were anxious to get away from the system from the outset of their official career. The old members of the board are breaking away gradually. Supervisor Moore's name no longer appears in the list of payees for road work. In districts one and two the bills are partly itemized and partly consolidated claims. It may be safely predicted that all bills for road work will soon be presented and sworn to by the parties actually interested. For one man to appear on the records as drawing hundreds of dollars for labor in one month, will awaken as much comment as if the bills were allowed solely in the name of the supervisors as heretofore.

The Ledger has persistently kept up the agitation against an innovation of long-standing, and public sentiment was so thoroughly aroused against it, that it had to fall.

The supreme court has held that a county recorder is not entitled to extra compensation for making an abstract of mortgages, notwithstanding that the statute says that the supervisors may fix his compensation for such work. It is held that the law giving the supervisors such power is unconstitutional.

are looking for something swell in dress shoes you cannot afford to pass this line by at the Jackson Shoe Store.

The windstorm of Wednesday night and Thursday was the most violent experienced in this section for years. The velocity of the wind was very great, and not a little damage has resulted therefrom. Several telephone poles around town were leveled. A tree fell upon the chicken house of E. T. Heath during the night, killing between 30 and 40 chickens. A portion of the roof of Sheriff Norman's residence was blown off. The driver of the Plymouth stage was delayed by having to remove a limb that had fallen across the road near Plymouth. A similar experience was met with on the road between Jackson and Big Bar bridge. A chair that stood on the corner of the porch of the Masonic hall was lifted bodily and landed in the street. The damage to skylights, barns and fences, will foot up considerable in the aggregate.

The very latest in dress goods; only one pattern of each color and style. E.

Go to Haller's, Ione, for bananas, oranges and lemons.

Mrs. Cora Correll, of Honolulu, formerly Miss Cora Keeney of Jackson, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. E. Kent.
She came on a visit to her parents at Woodbridge, and concluded to extend her trip to her relatives in Jackson.
Her husband is employed in a large mercantile firm in Honolulu, and is doing well. Her brother, George, has also a good position in the same place.

When my tailor made skirts appear in public they create extreme admiration.
E. Teesdale, "The Peddler."

M. Newman, the supervisor, was struck in the face a few days ago. He was handling a horse, when the animal displayed a belligerent spirit, rearing up and lancing with a fore paw on Newman's right cheek. Luckily it was a glancing blow, although sufficient to leave a scar over an inch in diameter, and a sympathetic discoloration of the right eye.

Lemons, oranges, and bananas constantly on hand at Nottles' Mkt.

Another fracas occurred last Monday evening at Jackson Gate, the outgrowth of a feud between two factions in that turbulent burg. The disturbance occurred on or near the premises of Victor Galini. A complaint was lodged against Galini for assault with a deadly weapon, and he was arrested the following morning by Sheriff Norman and deputy Jackson. It is claimed that Galini interposed for the purpose of preventing trouble between the quarreling parties. A warrant is out for another man, who has managed to elude the officers so far.

A line of wrappers that at a pinch would do to go to church in. E. Teesdale, "The Peddler."

Mrs. Folger, the postmistress, was the victim of an explosion last Sunday.
She was cooking in a gas stove in the Well building. On opening the door of the stove an explosion of gas occurred which sounded like the report of a gun, from the force of which she fell backwards to the floor. The report alarmed other inmates of the building, who rushed to the scene.
Mrs. Folger was burned about the face and the eyebrows singed, but fortunately no serious injuries were sustained.

The flame did not last long enough to burn deeply. She was confined to the house for two or three days, but is now almost fully recovered from the mishap.

PLYMOUTH.

William Green Felker, who died February 26, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. M. E. Decker, in San Francisco, was a native of Plattsburg, Wisconsin. He was born December 29, 1858, and was 65 years, 2 months and 29 days old at the date of his death.

It is a moot question, who has authority over the Jackson cemetery. This question was brought to the front this week. The prevailing idea has been that no one in particular but everyone in general had authority in the premises. But the thought that in an enlightened nation a burying ground should be left at the mercy of any one who might see fit to operate therein, is repugnant to all our conceptions of law and justice. Happily, the law is not so defective. Last week it was discovered that a number of trees had been felled within the graveyard for firewood. Some ladies interested themselves in the matter to the extent of trying to stop it. It has developed upon the ladies to collect by public subscription for the repair of the fences, and the payment of water charges, and it is no more than right if the growing trees have a commercial value, they should help to pay the necessary expenses. On Monday the women presented the matter to the supervisors. The members went to the cemetery to investigate the conditions therein, but seemed disinclined to interfere, claiming that it was not within their jurisdiction. Here was a pretty dilemma. A public graveyard—more populous than the town of Jackson itself—without a legal guardian; an orphaned cemetery as it were. They were not satisfied with this view, and looked up the law for themselves. The board of supervisors had adjourned in the meantime. The following sections of the codes are conclusive of the whole matter:

The public cemeteries of cities, towns, villages, or neighborhoods must be inclosed and laid out into lots, and the general management, conduct, and regulation of interments, permits of entry, or removal of interred bodies, the disposition of lots and keeping the same order, is under the jurisdiction and control of the cities and towns owning the same. If incorporated; if not, then under the jurisdiction and control of the Board of Supervisors of the country in which they are situated.

Every person who mutilates, disinters, or removes from the place of sepulture the dead body of a human being without authority of law is guilty of felony. But the provisions of this section do not apply to any person who removes the dead body of a relative or friend for reinterment.

Change at Red Front Store.

A change of management has taken place at the Red Front store in Jackson. Jos. Glukfeld, who has had charge of the store for several years, left Sunday last. L. Glukfeld, his brother, who has assisted in carrying on the business here lately, will also leave in a few days. The two will take charge of a new store which Mr. Axelrod is about to open in Vallejo. A.
Axelrod is to open in Vallejo.

A. W. Vorsanger and his bride arrived from the north last evening, and will make their home in Jackson, being intrusted with the management of the Jackson business. Mrs.
Vorsanger is a sister of A. Axelrod.

All the members of the new management have had experience in that line of business, and by their affable and accommodating ways expect not only to retain the large patronage heretofore enjoyed by this popular establishment, but also to largely increase the same.

Fire at Kennedy Flat.

The dwelling house belonging to Mrs.
Flaherty at Kennedy Flat, and occupied by the family of E. J. Post, chief machinist at the Kennedy mine, was completely destroyed by fire last Tuesday. The fire is reported to have originated by the two year old child playing with matches, thereby setting fire to the straw thatching. Mrs. Post discovered the flames, they had assumed such proportions as to be beyond control. It was all she could do to save herself and child. All the household furniture was destroyed.

Mr. Post had only recently moved his family to Kennedy flat from Sutter Creek. The property destroyed is valued at about $1000. We have not heard if it was covered by insurance.

The Public Graveyard.

Jackson is now, and has been for many years, particularly unfortunate in the uncared-for condition of its public burying ground. The cemetery is not under the control of an association or trustees. No organization was ever formed specially to take charge of it.
It has simply been filled up with graves without any regard to arrangement or order. Family plots have been fenced in the same way, the size of the plots in no way being influenced by the probable needs of the family. The prevailing impression has been that the grounds are subject to no particular authority, other than those who have relatives buried therein; that the owners of family plots have exclusive control over such plots, notwithstanding that they have never paid for the ground, and have no title other than that acquired by pre-empting the plots
